One Health in Action

College looks to expand reach, impact
At the June meeting of the Virginia Tech Board of Visitors, Gregory B. Daniel, interim dean, outlined the college's ongoing efforts, underscoring their alignment with the university's goals, and discussed forthcoming programs and facilities.

Learn More

University Distinguished Professor X.J. Meng awarded $2 million NIH grant renewal
Continuously renewed three times since 2002, the grant will allow Dr. Meng and his team to strengthen their life-altering research on hepatitis E virus.

Learn More

College receives $3.1 million NIH grant to advance flu vaccine work
Principal investigator Xiaoping Zhu, associate dean and chair of the Department of Veterinary Medicine at the University of Maryland, aims to create a universal flu vaccine.

Learn More

Oncologic surgeon joins veterinary college
A diplomate of the American College of Veterinary Surgeons with a background in integrative cancer care and translational research, Joanne Tuohy will develop a surgery service at the Comparative Oncology Research Center.

Learn More

Neuroscientist awarded NIH grant to study brain cell receptors involved in epilepsy
Sharon Swanger is an assistant professor in the college's Department of Biomedical Sciences and Pathobiology and at the Fralin Biomedical Research Institute at VTC.

Learn More

Alumni Corner

With wet weather comes a new hoof problem: Retracted soles
Scott Morrison (DVM '99), head of the podiatry department at Rood & Riddle Equine Hospital in Lexington, Kentucky, said he has seen more cases of retracted soles this year than ever before.

Learn More

Central Florida alumna recognized by FVMA
Donna McWilliams (DVM '02), owner of My Pet's Animal Hospital, was presented with the 2019 Gold Star Award by the Florida Veterinary Medical Association.

Learn More

Featured Video

Virginia Tech students engineer device to help alumna thrive
Three years ago, while on her morning run, Denise Gorondy-Toderico (DVM '99) was struck by a car traveling at 60 mph. She continues to recover from several strokes, traumatic brain injury, several broken vertebrae in her neck and back, and other orthopedic and internal traumas:

“I’m not there yet, but I’m going to get there.”

Watch video

Upcoming Events

To view all continuing education events, visit our Continuing Education Events page.

To view all alumni events, visit our Alumni Events page.

Want more news from Virginia Tech?
Subscribe to the Virginia Tech Daily email